WELCOME TO OUR 2026 CATALOGUE!

In 2027, Muddy Faces will celebrate 20 years. As that milestone approaches, I've been thinking back to our beginnings in 2007 - just me in an attic room, newly pregnant, full of big dreams and a deep belief that children thrive when they connect with nature. With a background in environmental education and Forest School training, that belief has guided Muddy Faces from day one.

Today, our team carries that mission forward with passion. We design quality products built to last, with sustainability at their core and specialist knowledge developed over many years. We're proud to be the main supplier of UK-grown wood educational resources, and our commitment to excellent service - before and after your order - is reflected in our 4.8 Trustpilot* rating.

Alongside our products, our free Outdoor Hub offers one of the largest collections of outdoor-learning guidance, while our monthly What's On newsletter keeps you informed and inspired. As we head towards this milestone year, I'll be sharing more of the ups and downs of running a business as a mum and a champion for children outdoors. Thank you for being part of the Muddy Faces journey. Follow us on our socials or sign up to our newsletter to stay connected with what's coming next.

We hope that you enjoy our 2026 catalogue.

GARDENS & WILDLIFE In today's fast-paced world, supporting children's physical and mental well-being matters more than ever. Time spent outdoors has been shown to lower anxiety, lift mood, boost concentration, and increase physical activity. That's why our special focus this year is Connecting to Nature.

In collaboration with Menna Godfrey from Outdoors Thinking, we've created a 26-page section filled with practical ideas, inspiring insights, and carefully-selected resources to help children build a meaningful, lasting relationship with the natural world.

ACTIVE BOUNDARIES pages 37-42. Our exclusive Active Boundaries range continues to receive fantastic feedback. Educators tell us they're seeing new patterns of behaviour and richer, more varied play emerging around these flexible boundary resources.

"The interaction and play we are observing is fantastic. In particular, children who sometimes struggle to find 'their place' in a busy playground gravitate to it."

Visit the Outdoor Hub for ideas on creating your own boundaries.

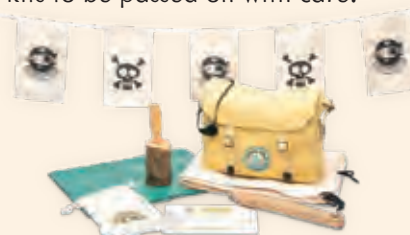

MUD KITCHENS page 47. Muddy Faces has championed mud play for 14 years, working with Professor Jan White to create the influential book Making a Mud Kitchen and our popular Modular Mud Kitchen range.

Who knew a simple ramp could unlock so much learning? Experiment with angles, speed, and objects that roll to explore the surprising mathematical magic intrinsic to play with ramps. Check out our resources on page 63 and get inspired.

In 2024, Kay and Jo of The Den Kit Company began looking for the right people to carry their legacy forward as they approached retirement. They wanted their beautiful, high quality den and activity kits to be passed on with care. Recognising Muddy Faces as a female-led company with a shared ethos, they chose us as the natural custodians of their creations. Read more on page 77.

FOREST SCHOOL We dedicate space in our catalogue and on our Hub to support organisations that champion our connection to nature. Read about the National Forest & Forest School Association on page 99.

Closing the catalogue with a moment of self-care, we revisit this year's theme with a thoughtful piece by Jon Cree on anxiety and how nature connection can support the well-being of children and adults. Read it on pages 139-140.

Our educational sheds are built to last

When investing in storage for your setting, it really pays to do your research. Many sheds look great online but arrive flimsy, quickly become damp or mouldy, and deteriorate far sooner than expected - costing you time and money, and causing frustration. Muddy Faces sheds are different. Designed specifically for schools and nurseries, they're built to handle daily use, unpredictable weather and busy outdoor environments. The result? Long-lasting value, reliable performance and sustainable materials you can feel good about.

Choosing the right shed: what matters

Timber treatment

One of the biggest factors in a shed's long-term durability.

Finishes vary widely - from a simple exterior paint to full pressure treatment.

Sheds that aren't pressure-treated will need frequent re-coating to prevent rot and decay, adding time, cost and ongoing maintenance.

Fully assembled vs self-assembly

Self-assembly sheds can take a surprisingly long time to build and any mistakes during construction can affect the shed's strength and lifespan.

A fully assembled shed saves time, avoids frustration and ensures the structure is built correctly from the start.

 Made by our team in the UK.

Timber-clad roof

With breathable waterproof membrane that keeps the interior dry & protected in all weather.

Vented roof & doors

Improves airflow to reduce moisture & help prevent mould.

Doors & internals

Radiused edges & smooth finish create a safer, child-friendly structure.

Attractive cladding

At 22mm our featheredge cladding is nearly twice as thick as standard sheds for added longevity.

Heavy-duty floor bearers

Ensures stability & prevents floor sagging over time.

Screwed, not nailed, framing

Provides long-term rigidity & resistance to movement.

Choose a Muddy Faces shed!

- ✓ Exceptional durability Pressure-treated timber delivers at least 10 years protection against insects and rot.
- ✓ Sustainable materials Made from FSC-certified timber you can trust.
- ✓ Delivered fully assembled No flat-pack, no fuss, no costly construction time.
- ✓ Designed for educators Smart layouts, long loose-parts storage, half-shelves, secure doors or easy-access tarp fronts.

Delivery Price includes kerbside mainland UK pallet delivery. Other areas calculated at checkout.

MUDDYFACES
UK-GROWN WOOD

A sustainable alternative to plastic play and learning resources.

Forests for the future

Our UK-grown wood products are sourced from a sustainably-managed woodland, helping to maintain the balance between ecological, economic and sociocultural factors and supporting the viability of UK woodlands in the future. Buying UK wood also benefits local livelihoods, biodiversity and ecosystems, and provides recreational opportunities that improve health and wellbeing.

Hand-harvesting

Our UK-grown wood products are hand-harvested. When trees are removed it allows light to penetrate to the woodland floor, enabling new growth and encouraging diversity in the woodland flora and fauna. Hand-harvesting by skilled craftspeople as part of a sustainable management plan allows wood to be extracted sympathetically with minimum disturbance to the natural environment.

Carbon footprint

As our UK-grown wood grows it traps atmospheric carbon and produces oxygen; once cut it travels a relatively short distance to be processed in our workshop. In contrast, consider a plastic item travelling from far overseas, and the resources, including fossil fuels, that were used to make it.

Biodegradable

Natural untreated wood is fully biodegradable and, with a little help from some fungi, it will decompose, adding nutrients to the ground when it has reached the end of its useable life. Our UK-grown wood products are not treated with any chemicals and are safe to be left to degrade naturally at the end of their lifespan. How about making insect habitats from them?

Nature connection

Connecting to nature from an early age helps instil a deep, sometimes intuitive, sense of our place within the natural world, that leads to a love and respect for our environment. To play and learn with wood is a full sensory experience. The unique character of each piece can be explored, with its bends, knots, flaky bark, different colours, textures and smells.

Happy · Healthy · Outdoors

Nature connection, providing a Wellbeing boost for all

This special 26-page section is dedicated to sharing resources, tips and ideas that explore how connecting with nature can support our health and wellbeing, and even make us happier. Muddy Faces is delighted to showcase our excellent resources - but, as always, we don't stop there. Visit our free Outdoor Hub to find a huge collection of ideas, activities and information to help you develop a wellbeing-focused approach for both children and adults.

Children are born with an innate desire to connect to nature, drawn to the sights, textures and sensations of the outdoor world. Getting hands-on with the natural world - playing in mud and water, feeling textures, exploring what's beneath their feet - can spark physical responses that support wellbeing, boost attention and encourage deeper, more meaningful play. Providing regular opportunities for children to spend time outdoors helps to nurture and strengthen this connection. Muddy Faces is dedicated to offering resources that enrich your outdoor spaces, inspire exploration and enable children to connect with nature in an authentic and meaningful way.

Children are fascinated by small, often unnoticed, living things that thrive in places adults might overlook or dismiss. When we slow down and pay close attention, we experience moments of 'micro-rest' - brief pauses that calm the mind and allow the parts of our brain responsible for focus to recharge. These gentle effects can be sparked by simple encounters: watching a ladybird, noticing moss growing between paving slabs, or breathing in the natural smell of the earth. These small, achievable experiences are available to all of us and help nurture a deeper connection to nature, supporting a happier, healthier time outdoors.

REASONS TO BE OUTSIDE

Experts tell us that young children should be outside for a minimum of three hours every day (about a quarter of their waking day), all year round. Across generations, we have moved from being 'earthlings' to 'indoorlings' - perhaps we need reminding of what the outdoors offers that the indoors cannot: the special nature of the outdoors.

NATURAL LIGHT

Spending time outside in full spectrum natural light improves learning ability and memory as well as mood, through the production of serotonin, often called a 'feel-good' hormone.

COOL FRESH AIR

Outside, the oxygen-rich air wakes up our brains, making us more alert. Children's bodies learn to respond to changes in temperature; shivering or sweating when necessary to help maintain an optimum body temperature.

BEING ACTIVE

The outdoors offers children the space and opportunity to crawl, roll, run, jump, shout and so much more. Physical play helps build the brain for learning and strengthens the muscles needed for active movement, while also laying the foundations for fine motor skills and small, everyday movements.

CONNECTING TO NATURE

Feelings of connection to the natural world are developed when we spend time in nature. Children are fascinated by the 'everyday' beauty in the world outside the door.

VISION & HEALTHY EYES

The muscles in our eyes need exercise to develop well. Looking closely at tiny minibeasts one minute, then focussing on a plane in the sky the next provides just this opportunity.

With this in mind, why stay indoors? Explore our resources to help create an inspiring outdoor environment for children to enjoy and learn from.

Use our Active Boundaries resources to create unique spaces in your outdoor environment. Fences, gates, stiles, tunnels & bridges provide enriching experiences and physical challenges for children to travel Over, Under & Through.

Visit our Outdoor Hub to delve into the pedagogy underpinning our work on Active Boundaries.

We've had amazing feedback since we launched our unique Active Boundaries range last year. We collaborated with some settings who shared their experiences of outdoor play using our Active Boundaries resources. A big thank you to St Patrick's Family Learning Centre and Blossom Years for their generosity and time.

St Patrick's Family Learning Centre, N Lanarkshire

"We constantly strive to improve our outdoors environment to keep it stimulating and interesting for the children and the active boundaries resources seemed to fit the bill perfectly as they can be moved, interchanged with other resources, and also invite ideas and suggestions from the children as to how to use them."

Blossom Years Nursery, Chislehurst

"The equipment is great for demonstrating positional language, the children like to show me how they can 'squeeze' through fence spaces and 'crawl under' the ladder. The children also like to 'decorate' the fences, and hang things off the posts."

We've noticed the children are...

- confidently problem solving
- quieter children are becoming more involved in group play
- becoming more aware of what their bodies can do
- much more resilient if they fall or trip."

STILES AND BRIDGES

Stiles and bridges appeal to children's innate urge to climb and elevate themselves off the ground even when it is a challenge, perhaps because it is a challenge. Vertical exploration needs coordination, balance, strength & bravery. It can take repeated attempts and determination to master the skills needed to scale an obstacle.

There are multiple rewards – an elevated view to survey the site and experience an unfamiliar perspective, the sense of achievement from overcoming a challenge, the exhilaration of height and the anticipation of jumping down.

Designed with stability in mind, Muddy Faces Active Boundaries have a wide-base design and can be easily attached to other equipment to make them even more stable.

GATES

The allure of gates for children is undeniable; the simple act of passing through them, with their dynamic possibilities of swinging, opening, closing and securing can be a captivating experience.

Exploring the engineering required to make a gate work requires problem-solving, spatial-awareness, communication and turn-taking.

Beyond their functional aspects, gates are portals to new places, gateways to creative and imaginative play. This all explains why it can take children so long to pass through a doorway or gate!

Muddy Faces Active Boundaries gates are real gates, with features designed for both engagement and safety. Wide gaps around hinges, simple latches with stoppers, rounded edges & wide bases.

FOOTPATH GATE

Always popular with children, this contained swing gate requires a lot of thought and coordination to get through.

PATHS AND BOUNDARIES

We have a natural inclination to follow pathways - they offer safe passage through unfamiliar terrain. By moving, balancing along edges or encountering boundaries, children develop their cognitive skills, expanding their capacity to think about and operate in two and three dimensions. As they repeatedly travel these paths, they start to map out the entirety of their outdoor surroundings and establish their own ways through.

GIANT BALANCE COURSE -120+ chunky pieces

This large collection of resources offers a huge range of opportunities for developing physicality, problem solving, communication and STEM, all which can be experienced in a real and very physical situation with an element of controlled risk. This large set consists of over 120 chunky pieces of different sized log bases, stepping logs, planks and balance poles, all made from UK grown wood. We have also added a couple of chunky ropes. Why not set a project: what is it? how do we get across? and see where it leads. Soon the children could be working together to cross the yard or alien swamp. This provides for plenty of opportunities to build resilience when their ideas may not succeed the first time. MFK5010 £1289.99

This will be delivered on a pallet to the roadside at your address. It is then your responsibility to move the item from the roadside to where you require it.

SPORTS PREMIUM

We sell a wide range of resources that support children's regular physical activity and play in the outdoor learning environment. Products in this section and our loose parts and den building section will broaden the range of physical activities offered to all pupils outside.

Making a Mud Kitchen

"Our Mud campaign has changed practice across the early years sector, and we take pride in declaring that mud play is now the norm not the exception"

As pioneers and change-makers, Muddy Faces use funds generated from our shop sales to spearhead and develop impactful projects. Our initiatives have been instrumental in driving transformative change particularly within the Early Years sector.

In 2011, Professor Jan White and Muddy Faces founding director Liz Edwards launched a Mud Play Initiative to increase the understanding, importance, value and range of experiences from mud play as continuous provision, and to support practitioners to achieve this.

Prior to this date only a few settings in the UK provided mud play or had a mud kitchen. Our Making a Mud Kitchen booklet was launched online as a free resource in 2012. Within a year it had been downloaded 20,000 times, and 17,000 printed copies were distributed free to practitioners across the UK. The response was breathtaking and the feedback so very positive. Proof of the success of the initiative is in the results: by 2017 mud kitchens had become fully mainstreamed, with a very high proportion of education settings of all types, in all UK countries, having a mud kitchen in their outdoor provision. Making a Mud Kitchen has since been translated into 12 different languages, achieving international recognition with tens of thousands of downloads made worldwide. In Portugal and Italy, major early years magazines distributed free printed copies to all their subscribers.

Making a Mud Kitchen advocates developing mud play spaces using recycled and moveable resources rather than static pieces of furniture. In response to this Muddy Faces created an exclusive Modular Mud Kitchen range that enables mud play areas to evolve and develop with children's play. The Create Modular Mud Kitchen was chosen as Best for Open Ended Play by the Independent newspaper in their 11 Best Mud Kitchens to Encourage Your Child's Creativity list.

We promote International Mud Day on the 29th June annually, creating free resources, running competitions and sharing practice. In 2023 Mud Champions was launched, where we seek out inspirational people who support groups to interact with natural materials, especially mud, and give them some well-earned recognition. If you have anyone you would like to nominate as a Mud Champion, please get in touch.

We often get asked how settings could have one of our shelters when they don't have enough trees to hang it from. A solution is to install posts to connect the shelter to, but sometimes this can be quite involved, and this is where Stuart from Just Grow can help you out.

Stuart travels throughout mainland UK installing outdoor shelters. Contact Stuart directly email hello@justgrowforestschooleducation & check out his Facebook pages for more ideas about what he can do.

The Den Kit Company was founded by Jo Jones and Kay Miller from their kitchen tables. As mums and teachers they had seen first-hand the huge benefits of creative, fun & unprescribed outdoor play. Jo and Kay both wanted their legacy to continue after their retirement and went on a quest to find a home for their beautiful kits. They knew that only a business with a similar approach to child-led play and a passion for the outdoors would do. They already admired the work that Muddy Faces had done over the years enabling children to access the outdoors, so they made the call. Liz, founder of Muddy Faces, had long admired The Den Kit Company and was very excited about working together and continuing The Den Kit Company range.

The successful move to Muddy Faces was made possible by DKC director Imogen Miller (daughter of Kay) who has settled in with the Muddy Faces team brilliantly. Imogen works to ensure that the Den Kit Company range remains true to its founding aims: making sure that every kit is made with the same dedication and attention to detail that Jo & Kay strived for.

Our specialist woodworking resources, including the free online Outdoor Hub woodworking section, have been created in collaboration with Pete Moorhouse, the UK's leading authority on woodworking in the Early Years.

Pete's book Learning Through Woodwork is essential for practitioners wanting to bring the benefits of woodworking to their setting.
MFK4100 £24.99

The Woodworking & Tools section of our Outdoor Hub features an exclusive introduction from Pete, plus his top tool picks, safety advice and more.

"There is something really special about woodwork. It is so different from other activities. The smell and feel of wood, using real tools, working with a natural material, the sounds of hammering and sawing, hands, minds and hearts working together to express their imagination and to solve problems, the use of strength and coordination: all go together to captivate young children's interest."

Four essentials tools

Pete's top 4 tools for Early Years woodwork:

- Hand drill
- Hammer
- Saw
- Screwdriver

"Having the most suitable tools makes a big difference & can reduce risk."

◀ PISTOL GRIP HAND DRILL

Enclosed gears. Ideal for use with younger children.
FSW24

Woodwork & safety

- Safety glasses should be worn at all times
- Ensure all children are given proper instruction on the correct use of all tools
 - A good sturdy workbench with a vice is essential
 - Sawing should be monitored 1:1
 - Check wood for splinters
 - Ensure all nails and screws are picked up from the floor afterwards – a large magnet can work a treat for this – and there will be no shortage of volunteers to use it!

Woodwork CPD online course with Pete Moorhouse

Introducing woodwork in early childhood education

This in-depth, 8-module course provides everything you need to safely bring woodwork into early childhood settings.

A set of recorded videos and a comprehensive collection of handouts and course notes allows you to complete your CPD at a time and place that works for you.

"This masterclass course draws on over 20 years experience of providing woodwork to young children. It draws upon extensive international research in many countries including Japan, New Zealand, Sweden, Finland, Denmark and USA, and my research on the Big Bang research project at Bristol University – evaluating the impact of woodwork on children's learning and development."

Safe practice tips

Aim to embed this practice right from day one.

- Wear eye protection at all times to eliminate risk of eye injury. Children find glasses more comfortable than chunky goggles.
- Ensure children are given instruction on the correct use of all tools. Take time to discuss together and draw attention to hazards. Children need to understand why H&S measures are put in place.
- When sawing, clamp the wood in a vice. The practitioner then checks that the vice is clamped tight before sawing.

"The benefits of woodwork for children's learning and development are immense across all areas of learning and children show the most extraordinary levels of concentration and engagement for sustained periods of time."

- Pete Moorhouse

Hammering requires fine motor skills, - manipulative control to hold the nail; muscular and core-body strength to use the hammer - building agility and dexterity.

"Thanks to Tina Hutchinson who drew out the blueprint of the Forest School Saw Box on the back of a napkin as we enjoyed lovely cake together at the national Forest School Association Conference. I was captured by the simple concept and Tina's stories of how useful it had been, making sawing on a log or the ground so accessible and controllable." Liz.

Forest School

In 2007, Muddy Faces launched as a pioneering Forest School equipment supplier. Throughout our journey, we've worked closely with Forest School practitioners & trainers, ensuring that our resources are tried and tested. Our commitment extends beyond supplying equipment; we actively contribute to Forest School development in the UK and abroad by curating a rich library of information and collaborating with organisations.

Stay informed about upcoming events like Forest School Day in October with our What's On monthly E-newsletter. Register at the bottom of each page on our website. Explore our FREE online magazine devoted to assisting outdoor practitioners - don't miss our exclusive Forest School Issue.

The Forest School Association (FSA)
The professional body and national voice for Forest School in the UK

We're here to champion quality Forest School for all through best-practice guidance, professional development, evidence-based research, and a vibrant UK-wide community of practitioners. Whether you're newly qualified, leading a setting, or training the next generation, FSA membership connects you to local hubs, national conferences, discounted insurance, free webinars, and a collective voice that shapes the future of Forest School.

Join from just £20 a year – everyone who believes in participant-led outdoor learning is welcome.

A huge thank you to Muddy Faces for your unwavering partnership – from conference sponsorship to co-creating resources that reach thousands. Together we're keeping Forest School thriving.

www.forestschoollassociation.org | membership open to all

The National Forest is transforming 200 square miles of the Midlands into a beacon for sustainability – a living example of how people and nature can thrive together.

Their aim is to get 100% of schools within the National Forest undertaking regular outdoor learning.

They offer grants for tree planting, ground improvements and more.

Fire & Cooking

DRAGONS SNEEZE FIRE STEEL AND STARTER

The fire steels are made from a premium quality ferrous rod manufactured in Europe and the fire striker has a hardened steel blade made in the UK. Both steel and striker have chunky ergonomic wooden handles making them easier to use, the handles are turned in the UK.

They are attached by a brightly coloured lanyard to help locate the flint in a natural setting. The lanyard gives a greater range of movement than conventional fire steel systems.

Pulleys are a fantastic addition to your loose parts provision. Children can be observed spending extended periods of time working together, in tasks such as lifting toys up to a platform, where someone takes them out and the action repeated. Pulleys are an ideal way to expand opportunities for schemas such as transportation and explore the physics of simple machines.

WATERPROOF CLOTHING

Effective clothing is the most important piece of outdoor equipment to enable sustained play outside.

Since 2006, Muddy Faces has been supporting a diverse range of education and play settings to choose the right clothing for their children and staff. Our range of clothing has developed through the feedback and experiences of our customers. Our lighter weight ranges are the most robust and waterproof that we can source for a lower budget. We do not recommend our lightweight ranges for more robust activities such as forest school.

HOW WATERPROOF IS THE CLOTHING?

For fabric to be considered waterproof, it must resist the pressure of a column of water 2,000mm tall. The level of resistance is called the hydrostatic head. The higher the hydrostatic head, the more waterproof the material. This is explained in more detail on our website.

We have added a waterproof rating symbol to our waterproof clothing; 4 drops is extremely waterproof down to 1 drop which is water resistant.

-  2,000-3,000mm
-   4,000-6,000mm
-   7,000-9,000mm
-    10,000-12,000mm

At Muddy Faces we always advocate quality, waterproof clothing to support sustained outdoor play and learning. Visit our hub for ideas and information on dressing for the outdoors.

Muddy Faces tip: Invest your budget in quality trousers or dungarees, as these are worn whether it's raining or not. Jackets are taken on and off depending on the weather and get less use.

Healthy, Happy, Outdoors where Wellbeing flourishes

In this article Jon Cree reminds us that we all experience anxiety at some level, indeed, anxiety is important as it helps us respond to risk and challenge in our environment in a measured way. However, we are all aware that if we become too anxious our body/brain system becomes overwhelmed and we no longer function well. Jon goes on to explain that playing outdoors in the presence of supportive adults provides the body with everything that it needs to reduce levels of anxiety and increase wellbeing.

'Willy Wonka's crazy boat ride and the outdoors' – how do we get off the anxiety boat? - Jon Cree

Last week, we spent 20 minutes trying to get welly boots and waterproofs on our 27-month-old granddaughter in preparation for a visit to a park. I felt the tension rise as we chased this gorgeous screaming banshee around the kitchen. She both knows her NO (which I absolutely adore – by the way, these small beings need to know their no before they can get to a yes!!) and at the same time is frustrated by the fact that we are making demands on her to put something on her bare skin and she doesn't want it.

Recognise this? I bet you do. These transitions from one place to another can be tricky for most of us let alone a two-year-old. So, what is going on here? A combination of things.

For us it is like that boat ride into the dark spooky tunnel at the opening of Willy Wonka's factory with Gene Wilder screaming at his manic pace to all the families on board – tensions are getting higher and higher and we just want to get off. This behaviour is hard for us as adults, testing our patience and the need to fulfil society's expectations!

For our granddaughter, it is an overwhelming feeling of loss of control. It is not that she won't go out, she just can't, due to the cortisol surging through her body, she's the one getting overwhelmed.

Over my almost 50 years in this profession of nature connection, scenarios such as this seem to be getting more familiar. The great anti-dote, ironically, is the actual BEING outside.

Today's young generation is often referred to as 'the anxious generation' reading Jonathan Haidt's book, of this title, it is clear from all the research that this is linked to the shift from a play based childhood to a screen based childhood which started in 1995 (when Gen Z began) and became deeply embedded in 2007/2008 when the iPhone and android smartphones hit the markets.

So what is anxiety... hopefully you got a feel from my opening paragraph, and all readers will feel it – it is, after all it is an essential emotion that protects us and helps us plan for the future... that is its gift.

ANXIETY IS NORMAL

However, anxiety becomes an issue is when it impedes our everyday living and is out of control, particularly when we start worrying about the worrying (worry is not an emotion it is the thinking part of anxiety). Brene Brown described worry as a chain of negative thoughts about bad things that might happen in the future (2021).

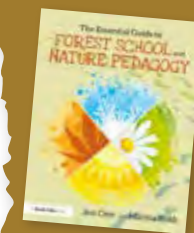

Why then are playing in the mud, climbing trees, making dens, creating models from sticks and leaves, cooking on a fire, and lying under an autumn tree antidotes to this overwhelming feeling of anxiety. The research done by Ellen Sandseter, Swedish early years educator and researcher, into the six risky play types has shown that risky play reduces anxiety and phobias about the world.

These are:

- GETTING LOST (hide and seek and den making)
- PLAYING WITH THE ELEMENTS – FIRE, EARTH, STONE, WATER ETC (mud kitchen and cooking on fires)
- HEIGHTS (tree climbing)
- SPEED (running games in the woods)
- ROUGH AND TUMBLE (play fighting providing important physical contact and understanding of limits)
- USING 'DANGEROUS' TOOLS (crafting a wooden train, weaving and sewing a puppet).

Experiences such as these are essential to our development - especially in early years, if we are to live in this stressful world with less anxiety. These can happen providing there is an adult holding the safe space, not adulterating children's play but observing from afar and only responding when invited by the child's play cues.

Jon is a Institute for Earth Education Trainer, Forest School leader and environmental trainer. He now works more and more with anxiety and trauma running training for numerous settings. As well as providing training he is a director of Bramblewood CIC, www.thebramblewoodproject.org.uk and co-authored 'The Essential Guide to Forest School and Nature Pedagogy' with Marina Robb.

For more information about Jon's training keep an eye on his facebook page.

It takes a playful adult who has their own 'bank of play experiences' and 'knowings of the play cycle and the natural world'.

The adult role is to provide a comfortable place and safe person for children to come back to when they need reassurance and the presence of a key adult to return to play. It is not to ask questions or make demands but to share their warm regulated nervous system in co-regulation.

What else are we, the adults, doing? We should be connecting ourselves to the natural tonic of soil, air, clouds, sunshine, leaves dancing and tree waving in our own playful way, so that we are regulated and in the moment, ready to provide that warm safe space for children to lean into when needed. Our role is to let go and trust that the natural world will support all the developmental milestones our small human beings require.

Children need a great deal of free play to thrive in the world. In particular they need ample time in the greatest play place - the natural world outdoors, where senses and the drive to play are most satisfied. Here anxiety is reduced and wellbeing increases.
