Muddy Faces UK-Grown Wood

We aim to supply a sustainable alternative to plastic play and learning resources.

Sustainably-managed woodlands maintain the balance between ecological, economic and socio-cultural considerations.

This provides integrated benefits such as supporting local livelihoods, biodiversity and ecosystems, and offering recreational opportunities to support health and wellbeing.

All woodlands benefit from being managed to a lesser or greater degree. When trees are removed it allows light to penetrate to the woodland floor, enabling new growth and encouraging diversity in the woodland flora and fauna. Hand-harvesting by skilled craftspeople as part of the sustainable management plan allows the wood to be extracted sympathetically with minimum disturbance to the natural environment.

All of the wood we use in our own products is grown in the UK. Consider the carbon footprint of a plastic item travelling from China, and the resources, including fossil fuels, that were used to make it. As our wood grows it traps atmospheric carbon and produces oxygen, then travels a relatively short distance to be processed in our local workshop. The wood we use is replenished by further tree planting or harvested sustainably through traditional coppicing techniques.

Connecting to nature from an early age helps instil a deep, sometimes intuitive sense of our place within the natural world, that leads to a love and respect for our environment. To play and learn with wood is a full sensory experience. The unique character of each piece can be explored, with its bends, knots, flaky bark, different colours, textures and smells. Natural materials can help bring elements of the outdoors in to our structured, indoor spaces. This can be very helpful when aiming to create appropriate, calming sensory environments indoors.

Natural untreated wood is fully biodegradable and, with a little help from some fungi, it will decompose, adding nutrients to the ground when it has reached the end of its useable life. What happens to our piece of plastic? Will it end up in landfill or even in the stomach of a shearwater chick on a faraway island? Plastic is undeniably a massive part of our modern lives and we have many plastic products in our shop. But, through our UK-grown range of wood products, we try to do something to help offset the impact these products may have, where we can. We'd love you to try some of our wooden products and see how they work for you as an alternative to plastics. Together we can start to shift the balance of how our learning resources are produced onto a more sustainable path.

Reducing Environmental Impact - Day-to-day at Muddy Faces

As an organisation we try to embody our values through our business practices. We are a family-friendly, flexible employer. Our own products are packaged in non-bleached calico and paper bags. We have also created a card to explain that any plastic in parcels is being reused from our suppliers.

*It may not look neat
but it goes down a treat
that Muddy Faces
recycle their packaging*

Environmentally- responsible packaging

- Plastic bags → biodegradable, paper and cloth bags
- Bubble wrap → cardboard wrap and shredded card
- Boxes → reusing packaging and new cardboard
- Plastic tape → paper tape

The future

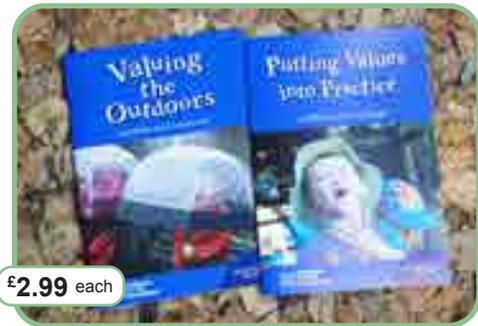

Over the next year we plan to explore more ways we can reduce our environmental impact, through packaging, product presentation and sourcing. We will be opening dialogues with our suppliers, encouraging them to reduce their use of plastic packaging, and to find out more details about the environmental impact of their products.

"We believe that children need the natural world and that it looks after them. They are biologically designed to be outdoors in a nature-rich environment and therefore thrive by having everyday intimate contact with it. It provides the most generous and powerful learning environment, with great affordance for child-led learning and development."

The Lost Words by Robert Macfarlane and Jackie Morris

The Lost Words is a 'book of spells' that seeks to conjure back the near-lost magic and strangeness of the nature that surrounds us. Each lost word is brought back to importance through Robert Macfarlane's powerful spells. They are called 'spells' rather than poems as they are designed to be spoken (or sung!) out loud in order to summon back these words and creatures into our hearts. MAC212

£20.00

Spell Songs

A musical companion piece to The Lost Words by Robert Macfarlane and Jackie Morris, Spell Songs gathered together eight remarkable musicians whose music engages deeply with nature, to create an inspiring new body of work. Presented with a beautiful book, featuring new spells and artwork by Robert and Jackie. JSL1001

FREE Explorers pack:

An interdisciplinary Explorers Pack for KS2-KS3 celebrating the music, art and natural wonders of Spell Songs. This FREE pack offers a wide range of suggestions to embrace a cross-curricular approach, encouraging constructive curiosity, for individual and collaborative work with opportunities to involve the wider community. Download the pack at www.thelostwords.org/resources

"We've got more than 50% of species in decline. And names, good names, well used can help us see and they help us care. We find it hard to love what we cannot give a name to. And what we do not love we will not save."
Robert Macfarlane

Nature Tables

Nature tables have gradually been lost from our classrooms and have been replaced by posters and laminated pictures. Research has shown that exposure to the natural world and its myriad of bacteria and chemicals, is hugely beneficial both for our physical and mental wellbeing. So let's bring back the nature table to the classroom.

£299.99 Nature Table Resources Set
An intriguing and large collection of resources to establish a nature table. The set includes: shells, pebbles, pine-cones, bamboo, wood, gemstones and wool. Minibeast, animal and leaves trail discs, 2 life cycles, replica fossils and a Today the Weather is...set. various magnifiers, a tray, pots and small and large baskets. To see a photo and for a full description of this set visit our website. MFK4015

You do not need to spend money setting up a nature table. Allocate a space, maybe create a sign and start welcoming those fascinating finds. If you're thinking "YUCK", challenge yourself and ask WHY? Why not have a dead spider or wasp or a sheep's jaw. By turning away a child's precious treasure, they could be missing out on a fascinating learning experience for the whole class. Nature tables are also an effective vehicle to involve home life and families.

Tips: To make it easier to maintain and clean your Nature table don't over fill. Set up solutions for less hygienic contributions. Rotate items to keep the table interesting.

Giant Balance Course

120+ chunky pieces

This large collection of resources will be delivered on a pallet. It offers a huge range of opportunities for developing physicality, problem solving, communication and STEM, all which can be experienced in a real and very physical situation with an element of controlled risk. This large set consists of over 120 chunky pieces of different sized log bases, stepping logs, planks and balance poles, all made from UK grown wood. We have also added a couple of chunky ropes. Why not set a project: what is it? how do we get across? and see where it leads. Soon the children could be working together to cross the yard or alien swamp. This provides for plenty of opportunities to build resilience when their ideas may not succeed the first time. MFK5010

Loose Parts Set

An interesting set to get your loose parts provision going. Chutes pipes, guttering, funnels planks poles, stands, tarpaulin, netting, tubs, crates, clear tarpaulin and more. MFK4024

Loose parts are open ended with many play possibilities. They are used to explore, question and experience, providing children with the resources required to follow their own interests in playful, innovative and creative ways.

Artificial play space often can be devoid of open ended resources for children to move and manipulate.

These spaces can be improved by adding loose parts provision.

Take a look at the loose parts tool kit on www.inspiringscotland.org.uk

Most loose parts can be sourced for little or no money. All it takes is the time to find the people or companies who can donate items to you. Aim for a wide variety of objects in abundance that you can add to.

Massive Loose Parts Kit

This set is made up of hundreds of items chosen for their rich play and learning opportunities. Including: den and structure building with poles, bases, planks, milk crates, blocks and tarps, camo netting, hessian, tarpaulins and clear tarpaulins. For budding engineers there are chutes, stands, balls, buckets and pulleys, carabiners, cord and rope and bamboo, pebbles, scoops and buckets. Drawing and writing, yard chalks and chalk boards. BiOplastic

Made from sugarcane

The "I'm Green" symbol may only be used after the amount of sustainable raw materials contained in the product has been verified. Traditional PE is primarily made of crude oil, where as "I'm Green" PE (bioplastic) is made from at least 90% sugarcane (ethanol).

Dantoy bioplastic are quality products with a long service life and they are not manufactured to be biodegradable. If they were readily biodegradable, they would not be durable.

Peg Loom

The first outing of our new peg loom was at the Forest School Association Festival and it was met with such enthusiasm - people were intrigued with how it worked and others were asking where the idea had come from. The conclusion, by most, was that it is so simple yet so very clever and that the effect with un-spun sheep's wool was amazing.

The inspiration for our new peg loom came from Coralie Hopwood (John Muir Trust). She brought it back from Estonia, where she had been participating in an Erasmus-funded visit, through ARCH NET4, about managing Natural and Cultural Heritage Assets, with other natural environment professionals from Scotland. Her group spent one morning with Merike Sepp and her husband, who run a wool factory and weaving workshop on their farm on the Sõrve peninsula, Saaremaa Island, the most South Westerly point of Estonia. Merike showed the group traditional weaving techniques using peg looms and long, untreated sheep fleeces, whilst also singing traditional working songs. The experience inspired Coralie to work with Liz at Muddy Faces to try to make some portable, Forest School-ready peg looms for use in the UK with groups.

Coralie said: 'The profoundly calming experience of gradually building up a weave, whilst talking, singing and sharing with those around us, was wonderful. I thought it would translate very easily to wellbeing and creative activities out in the woods back home.'

For projects that are more advanced in their tool use, making a peg loom could be a project that could be worked on over several weeks. The loom could also be scaled up and down, and used with natural materials such as grasses or willow. For instructions on how to use a peg loom visit the Outdoor Hub.

Geo patterns sets explore many aspects of learning - the physicality of hammering in nails and fine motor skills when connecting the wool or elastic bands, and mathematical aspects such as pattern making. We recommend the elastic set for younger children as the wool can be a bit more difficult to use.

Choosing which clay to use

Air drying clay has fibres in it to give it rigidity when it dries, use this type of clay for things you want to take home/ keep indoors. If you plan to leave your clay outdoors, work within a mud kitchen or stick clay faces to trees etc then we recommend our natural school buff clay to avoid man made fibres getting into the natural environment. Please note that it's kiln clay and will be very brittle when it dries out naturally.

In the spring frogs appeared in our garden, heading to the pond to mate. We used a frog life cycle to help us explore the developmental stages. The large bag of natural clay stored in our mud kitchen was put to good use, as we started to create our own life cycle out of clay.

The most fun was had when rolling lots and lots of little balls for the frogspawn and pushing a felt tip lid into each one. Once you have made your clay frog, it is imperative you take it to explore around your garden.

Don't forget, the thing clay frogs like best is a little push on the swing. Keep an eye out for clay frog-eating birds high up in the branches!

Hapa Zome Leaf Dye

A fun, simple but very effective natural colour extraction technique with the added attraction of bashing things with hammers, making it appeal to all genders, ages and abilities.

The now widely used term 'Hapa Zome' was developed by India Flint, an amazing natural colour artist and author. By placing plants on a flat surface - covering in a natural material and then evenly hammering, the plant releases its colour into the material creating amazing and individual effects.

We love Hapa Zome - its physical and creative and, as long as a couple of basic rules are followed, the results are always successful.

Search Hapa Zome on our Outdoor hub to find inspiring plant bashing ideas.

Messy Maths RBE211

"Being outside makes maths feel real rather than disconnected from our daily lives. And real maths is really messy! Aside from mud pies and puddles, the cognitive processes involved mean it is not a smooth linear pathway of learning but rather an interconnected network. Children need time to make sense of abstract mathematical ideas through experiential processes along with opportunities to ponder, enjoy and discuss the concepts encountered. Lots of playing along the way is a must."

Extract from Messy Maths by Juliet Robertson.

The Message Centre

Young children love hiding and finding. They are switched on by the extraordinary in life. When you combine mark making with searching and discovery, you find that your provision becomes hugely energised by the will to write. And it all starts with the power of the secret symbol, something so simple yet explosive that once you've introduced it, writing changes forever.

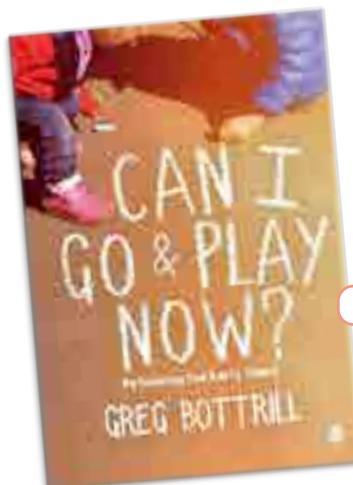

The photo is of a secret symbol. The boy who drew it called it Evil Eggy and hid it in his shoe. Something amazing happened when he got home and his older 'reluctant writer' brother found it. And when he came downstairs for breakfast the next morning, his dad has left him a mystery message under his bowl.

All this emerges when you introduce a Message Centre in your Early Years setting and it has the potential to transform 'writing' to the next level where children are desperate to do it.

The Message Centre tutorial

has been designed to get your adventure into messaging underway and it's an investment of time and money that will repay you not only in outcomes from the children but also in your own connection to teaching and learning - a double impact that takes writing to the next level. Hop across to the tutorial to discover more and 'get the message' for yourself: <http://bit.ly/2yXMnJL>

Dragons Sneeze Fire Steel and Striker

What prompted the design of the Dragons Sneeze?

I had been chatting to a lady with osteoporosis who had struggled to hold a standard fire flint, and this got me thinking. So I designed a system that created two chunky handles that were easy to hold. As Muddy Faces is based in Sheffield, it was ideal for sourcing a fantastic, quality hardened-steel blade for the striker. I sent her my prototype and she said she found it worked really well and was easy to use. I thought if it helped her, surely, it would be useful for others. I certainly hadn't expected how well received it would be.

How did you come up with the name?

We ran a competition asking our customers for suggestions to name our new, innovative designed fire steel and striker. Four people suggested the Dragons Sneeze. We thought the action of a sneeze as quick, powerful and sometimes surprising, was just like the spark created when you strike our steel, and we liked the name! So it was decided and we sent the competition winner a Dragons Sneeze plus some other bits to get their fire started.

Who is the Sneeze for?

I think it's really handy for all practitioners to have at least one Dragons Sneeze in their kit. It offers an alternative action to the traditional fire flints and it seems that most people can master it easily, allowing success for each individual in a group.

"The dragons sneeze is still going strong, in fact it's the only fire steel anyone wants to use in my sessions!"

"I run Forest School sessions for adults with ASD & Learning Disabilities. Lighting fires is an activity which my learners find very rewarding but unfortunately some of the people who attend struggled to use fire steels. Muddy Faces advised me to try their "Dragons Sneeze" fire steels which are more suitable for people who find fine motor tasks difficult. They're brilliant! Learners who previously couldn't light fires can now enjoy doing so. Muddy Faces practical advice and knowledge of how to make accommodations to ensure inclusive practice have definitely helped me to improve my sessions."

The Dragons Sneeze was designed and developed by Liz Edwards at Muddy Faces.

The fire steels are made from a premium quality ferrous rod manufactured in Europe and the fire striker has a hardened steel blade made in the UK. Both steel and striker have chunky ergonomic wooden handles making them easier to use, the handles are turned in the UK. They are attached by a brightly coloured lanyard to help locate the flint in a natural setting. The lanyard gives a greater range of movement than conventional fire steel systems.

NEW
Eco Loos Compost Toilets
The toilet is a waterless, composting toilet, ideal for your outdoor space. It does not use water but allows natural processes to produce compost that can be used on the garden. The toilets are 'urine separating' so everyone using them has to sit down to allow the separation of solid and liquid waste. Under the seat is a large container, into which you scoop sawdust, then it is ready to use. When the container is full, you lift out and replace it with a new one. The full container is then put somewhere to decompose.

Each compost toilet comes with the following as standard:

- FSC Timber cubicle
- Urine separating toilet built in a timber box
- Pipework already installed for liquid waste and collection container
- Recycled black non-slip flooring
- Laminated instruction sheets
- Battery operated LED light
- Sliding bolt lock
- Sawdust bin and scoop
- Toilet roll holder and coat hook

At Muddy Faces we always advocate quality, waterproof clothing to support sustained outdoor play and learning. Visit our hub for ideas and information on dressing for the outdoors.

Muddy Faces tip:

Invest your budget in quality trousers or dungarees, as these are worn whether it's raining or not. Jackets however, are taken on and off depending on the weather and get less use.

Waterproof Clothing

Effective clothing is the most important piece of outdoor equipment to enable sustained play outside. The only thing that can equal it, in importance, is the adult supervisors' and settings' attitude. Even with the smallest outdoor space, with the support of enthusiastic and supportive adults and effective clothing, children can access the outdoors for sustained periods. They become involved in fascinating play and have the opportunity to connect to nature in a deep level learning experience.

For almost a decade, Muddy Faces has been supporting a diverse range of education and play settings to choose the right clothing for their children and staff. Our range of clothing has developed through the feedback and experiences of our customers. Our lightweight range is the most robust and waterproof that we can source for a lower budget. We do not recommend our lightweight ranges for more robust activities such as forest school.

Look after your waterproofs and they will look after you!

It is essential to look after outdoor clothing in the correct manner to help it retain its waterproof level. Every wash reduces the lifespan of the clothing. To find out more, look at our individual brand "Care and sizing guides" on-line.

Free downloads are available on our website to help you dress for the outdoors including explaining layering and a practitioners guide.

How waterproof is the clothing?

-  2000-3000mm For fabric to be considered waterproof, it must resist the pressure of a column of water 2000mm tall. The level of resistance is called the hydrostatic head. The higher the hydrostatic head, the more waterproof the material. This is explained in more detail on our website.
-  4000-6000mm
-  7000-9000mm
-  10,000-12,000mm

We have added a waterproof rating symbol to our waterproof clothing; 4 drops is extremely waterproof down to 1 drop which is water resistant.

Adult Clothing

Clothing is as important for adults as it is for children; adults need to be comfortable to facilitate good quality, outdoor play and learning. They need to be able to move easily and to regulate their temperature to remain comfortable. If this is not the case and a leader becomes wet and cold, they can become less interactive, less alert and often cut the outdoor play short even though the children are happy and contented playing out.

Our Ocean adult clothing range offers brilliant levels of waterproofing at affordable prices. We stock three different ranges as follows:

Ocean Stretch Range

Ocean Stretch range is waterproof and windproof and has been tested waterproof to 8000mm. It is made from 210g PU coated polyester fabric. Available in olive and navy.

Ocean Light Range

Waterproof (5000mm), windproof. It is made from 170g PU coated polyamide fabric. Available in olive and navy.

Ocean Pure Range

Waterproof (8000mm). Made from 210g PU coated recycled polyester. Available in navy.
